

Last year Jeremy did a bathroom renovation for my wife and I. When he gave me the bid, I said, "you're kidding me, right. It has to be more than that." He said, "No that's really all it is. This is how my wife and I started with Freyenhagen Construction. We were both pleased with not only the ease of working with Jeremy, but more importantly, the quality of work and the finished product. These were two of the major factors we considered, when it came to choosing a contractor for our home addition

I guess my wife, Roxie and I are typical, when it comes to visualizing a plan in our heads, but not really knowing where to go with it. Well, Jeremy worked with us in putting the total package together. I wanted a finished product I could walk into, and not have to spend a lot of time "finishing" off. Freyenhagen construction gave me that "turn key" product. Many times, during the construction of the addition, my wife and I "switched gears". Jeremy would take the time to put the new plan together and let us know our options. He and his employees provided us with enough information to allow us to make the choices we wanted. Freyenhagen Construction worked with us more like a friend, than a business associate. I would highly recommend them to anyone with a desire to add on a high quality product, large or small.
