

To whom it may concern,

1 February 1998

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Jeremy Freyenhagen for a job well done and to recommend him for your home remodeling or construction needs.

This past fall we decided to increase the size of our kitchen. To accomplish this, the remodel required removing one of the load bearing walls and replacing it with a support beam. This portion of the project promised to create excess plaster dust and loose debris. Jeremy took special precautions to keep the dust problem at the minimal level by constructing not only poly containment walls but covering the floor with a special protector specifically intended for floor applications. Taking these precautions, he was able to keep the remainder of our home comfortable and protect the existing new flooring.

We found the sub contractors Jeremy contracted for our remodel to be very professional, did great work, and were all polite and courteous. To say the least, we were pleased with their workmanship and ultimately the end product.

The one thing that most impressed us about Jeremy (Freyenhagen Construction) was his honesty and attention to detail. Jeremy did what he said he was going to do and did it well. As with any construction project there are a few little details that always seem to be left and never completely resolved. Jeremy has not let this happen. Even after the contract was satisfied in monetary terms, Jeremy has continued to work with a supplier to have some custom work completed on our behalf.

It was truly our pleasure to have been associated with Freyenhagen Construction. We hope you find your association with Jeremy as rewarding as ours. If you have any questions about our remodel or would like to view the finished work, please feel free to have Jeremy refer you to us.

Les & Corrine Krenzer